To Whom it May Concern

As solicitor to The Liberty Hundred<sup>i</sup>, I confirm that my client company specialises in identifying and restoring Manorial Titles that have been unused for many years and in many cases were believed to have been lost.

I can confirm that the processes used to restore the Manorial Titles have been carefully formulated based on extensive legal advice from London counsel who has thoroughly researched the subject and approved all the contractual documentation.

Because of the privileged and sophisticated nature of the processes and the risk of plagiarism the procedures used to identify and restore the Manorial Titles can not be disclosed to the public.

On payment and completion of the Agreement Deed I will

- a) provide a letter of introduction for the purchaser to use and
- b) post a notice in the London Gazette advising the public and indeed all the world that the Restored Manorial Title will now be in use.

If you have any questions regarding this notice please first make them through The Liberty Hundred as they will almost certainly be able to answer them to your satisfaction.

Yours faithfully,

Jonathan Hatton
Hatton Solicitors
